

PAY PARITY NOW

Paramedics are emergency services
professionals.
It is time our compensation reflected the work, risk, and responsibility.

SAME EMERGENCIES. SAME RISK. DIFFERENT RECOGNITION.

Paramedics respond alongside police and fire to critical incidents, violent scenes, traumatic injuries, overdoses, cardiac arrests, mental health crises, collisions, and public safety emergencies. We provide medical care where the emergency happens.

Paramedicine has evolved. Compensation has not kept pace.

Today's paramedics assess, treat, transport, document, advocate, de-escalate, coordinate care, and support patients across an overloaded healthcare system.

The scope of the job has grown.
The value placed on the profession
needs to grow with it.

THEN

- Emergency transport

NOW

- Emergency care
- Community paramedicine
- Mental health response
- Complex medical calls
- Hospital offload delays

BEHIND EVERY RESPONSE IS A HUMAN BEING.

Paramedics carry the physical and emotional weight of the job every shift. Long hours, traumatic calls, violent scenes, missed meals, offload delays, and constant pressure all come at a cost.

Fair compensation is part of respecting that reality.

RETENTION IS PUBLIC SAFETY.

When experienced paramedics leave for better wages, better benefits, or less stressful work, communities lose skill, experience, and stability.

Pay parity is not just a labour issue.
It is a public safety issue.

UNDERFUND THE PEOPLE.
STRAIN THE SYSTEM.
RISK THE SERVICE.
